Working Against Violence, Inc.

About WAVI

In June of 1978, three visionary Rapid City women met to discuss the need for assistance to victims of domestic violence. This group identified its primary purpose as assisting women and children in crisis by providing temporary emergency shelter and supportive services, and to educate the community on the issues of domestic violence. They called the agency Women and Violence, Inc—WAVI. The agency has been operating as Working Against Violence, Inc. since 1996, and moved into its current facility in 2004. We continue to offer the most complete, secure and supportive services for survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault in the region.

Right now, someone is walking through the door at WAVI. You can ensure that help is always there, 24 hours a day. You can give them hope she or he desperately needs. You can change a life. Please, join our mission. Together, we can break the cycle of violence.
